New incidents along the frontier of Greece and Bulgaria threaten to interfere with the pacifying efforts of the League of Nations.

Each side blames the other for the fresh outbreaks. Sofia officially states that Greeks opened fire on a Bulgarian frontier post early this morning, while Athens says Greeks near Ranna in Greek territory were attacked.

A report from Saloniki claims the Greeks were attacked while withdrawing from Bulgarian territory in conformity with the orders of the League council, and that as a result of this incident, it is believed the evacuation must have ceased.

Meanwhile representatives of both nations appearing before the League council in Paris, apparently prior to receipt of news regarding the reported outbreak, assured the council that its orders would be carried out.

GREEKS RESUME FIRE
Sofia, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Despite the warnings of the League of Nations council, Greek troops at daybreak continued to occupy Bulgarian territory and there were no signs that they intended to withdraw.

Bulgarian officials in making this announcement, said a number of villages were bombarded during the early morning hours.

SAYS EVACUATION IS ON
Paris, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Greece announced at today's meeting of the League of Nations council that she had given orders for her troops in Bulgarian territory to retire behind her own frontier. She assured the council that complete evacuation of Bulgaria would be carried out within the 48 hour limit laid down by the council.

CLAIM BULGARS ATTACKED
London, Oct. 28.—(AP)—An Exchange dispatch from Saloniki, Greece declares that while the Greek troops were withdrawing from Bulgarian territory this morning, they were attacked by Bulgarians.

"It is believed the evacuation must have ceased," the dispatch adds.

(Telegraph Special Service)

Morrison, Oct. 28.—The case of the People vs. Buchanan of Dixon, on trial for an alleged statutory crime, the charge of which was preferred by Mrs. George Granis of Rock Island, may go to the jury late this afternoon, it was indicated when court recessed for dinner, after the last of the evidence had been submitted.

At that time it was assured when court recessed this afternoon the closing arguments by the attorneys would be taken up. States Attorney Beese, of Whiteside county, and Attorney James ("Red Necktie") O'Brien of Chicago are appearing for the state and Attorney John E. Erwin of Dixon is Buchanan's counsel.

Several Dixon citizens were in Morrison yesterday where they were summoned as character witnesses in the trial of John Buchanan of this city who is being tried on a statutory charge in the Whiteside county circuit court. Attorney Erwin, for Buchanan, surprised the prosecution by using some of the same witnesses subpoenaed by the state to testify for the defense.

Editor of Newspaper
Who Libel Legion to Serve Term in Prison

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 28.—(AP)—Arthur Lorenz of Chicago, editorial writer for the Staats Zeitung, German language newspaper of Chicago, must serve six months in the Cook county house of correction for writing a "criminal libel" against the American Legion. The supreme court upheld the sentence here today, which also carries with it a fine of $1 and costs.

Lorenz wrote an editorial Dec. 13, 1921, using odious adjectives in classifying members of the American Legion. His lawyers defended him on the ground that he attacked no one in particular. The supreme court's ruling was to the point: "A libel," it reads, "on a class or group, has as great a tendency to provoke a breach of the peace or to disturb society as a libel on an individual and such a libel is punishable even though its application to individual members of the class cannot be proved."

Justice Heard of Freeport dissented from the majority opinion.

LITTLE TOUCH OF
WINTER HIT THIS CITY LAST NIGHTMercury Down to Seven

Territory

At least two inches of snow and a cold northwest wind which drove the mercury in the government thermometer at the Arvane Lord home, on First avenue, down to 7 degrees above zero, gave Dixon and this territory real winter weather during the night and today.

Some thermometers in open places in this vicinity are reported to have registered as low as two degrees above zero, while many recorded ten.

Continued cold tonight and Thursday is the weatherman's promise.

Chicago, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Under a blanket of snow the midwest and Rocky Mountain region today faced the prospect of continued cold with a cold wave in southern Missouri, Illinois and Indiana.

The white covering, which broke records in Milwaukee and endangered the unharvested beet crop in Colorado, was nearly ten inches thick at Helena, Mont., and a half foot or more in many sections of Iowa.

Accompanying the snow fall were dropping temperatures reaching two degrees above zero at Havre, Mont., the coldest spot in the country yesterday and hovering around the freezing mark in the corn belt region. Kansas expected from 15 to 30 degrees above zero today and Omaha looked for 20 degrees.

Try to Save Beet Crop

The low temperatures in northwestern Colorado caused businessmen and school children to turn out in aiding farmers' efforts to save the beet crop valued at $500,000.

STREETS AND BANK
CONTRACTOR THEME
COUNCIL ARGUMENTVaile Says Some of Dixon
Streets are Unsafe
for Traffic

"There are places in the streets of Dixon which make them unsafe to drive over and the paved streets of Dixon are becoming a series of sink holes," declared Commissioner Joe E. Vaile of the department of streets at the regular meeting of the city council last evening. "I counted 36 of these places in a drive over our streets yesterday and in some places the indentures are almost 18 inches in depth. Should an accident happen on account of these conditions the city would be responsible," added the commissioner, who launched a movement against all persons making excavations in the city's streets.

Commissioner Vaile asked that the council give him their support in a campaign to put the city's streets back in proper condition and to enact an ordinance which will keep them in first class condition. He declared that the present ordinance is not sufficient and that persons in the city making excavations in the streets pay no attention to the ordinance. The commissioner asked that no more permits be granted to parties desiring to open the streets until all of the sunken places are put back in first class condition.

Council Favors Action

The entire council favored taking some immediate action to put a stop to the practice. On West Third street it was reported that excavation had been made for water mains and that the refil rendered that part of the brick paved street unsafe for traffic. Similar conditions were reported to be existent in all parts of the city where the streets are paved. The proposition of enacting a new ordinance whereby all persons making excavations will be required to make a cash deposit of a sufficient amount to pay for the replacing of the street in its former condition, the work to be done by the city's street department, before a permit is granted, was discussed. The final outcome of the trouble resulted in the council instructing the city clerk to issue no more permits for excavations in the city until the present bad places are put in repair, this to be done at once.

Charges "Spite Work"

Commissioner George Campbell voiced strong opposition to the action of the contractor on the City National Bank's new building. The commissioner intimated that "spite work" on the part of the contractor was quite evident. He told the council that this was not the first time that complaint had been made to the civic body and added that little attention had been paid to warnings.

Not content with occupying a part of the sidewalk and at least ten feet of the street, the most important thoroughfare in the city, the commissioner said the contractor now occupied all of the sidewalk and at least ten feet of the street. A pile of radiators which a few days ago were piled on the sidewalk were now piled up ten feet into the street the commissioner complained.

"It seems to me that it is about time that this council take some action in this matter and not delay longer. Personally I seem to me that it is merely spite work on the part of the contractor. In Chicago or any of the larger cities he would not be permitted to occupy the entire sidewalk and street for the entire summer. It is not only an injustice to the public who are forced to walk in the middle of the busiest street in Dixon, but it is equally an injustice to the merchants whose places of business cannot be reached because people are afraid of being run down by automobiles. Business men in adjoining store rooms have lost heavily all summer and from all appearances, they stand a good show of continuing to lose all winter unless something is done and done quickly."

Bids on New Water Mains

Bids were opened for 323 feet of water main to be laid on West Second street, two contractors submitting figures. The bid of Kline & Heckman was for $123 and that of T. J. Beck for $222. The bids were tabled until a later session. The contract for the laying of cement sidewalks on North Ottawa avenue and Graham street was awarded to Stephan & Heagy of this city at a contract price of 20 cents per square foot. Andrew Huggins of this city also submitted a bid in the sum of 23 cents per square foot.

The bid for Stephan & Heagy of this city, the only one submitted for the installing of a sanitary sewer system, concrete curb gutter and paving on West Water street from Adams avenue to Peoria avenue, was accepted by the board of local improvements at the engineer's estimate. The contractors expect to install the sewer this fall and be ready to begin work on the paving early in the spring.

DIXON WOMEN IN AUTO MISHAP ON
SLIPPERY BRICKMrs. Clarence Heckman Most Painfully
Injured in Wreck

Mrs. Clarence Heckman was seriously injured in an automobile accident about one mile east of Sterling last evening about 5 o'clock when the Dodge sedan in which her sister Mrs. Stanley Graham of Rock Falls and Mrs. Addie Toffe and three children, turned over. Mrs. Heckman, who was driving, was thrown through a window and was badly cut and bruised about the body. She was rendered unconscious and remained in this condition for some time after the accident. Mrs. Toffe received bruises about the body as did the others in the party, but all were able to return to their homes, with the exception of Mrs. Heckman, who, after receiving medical attention was taken to the home of her sister, Mrs. Stanley Graham in Rock Falls.

The party were returning from a visit in Sterling and Rock Falls and about a mile east of Sterling, while driving at a speed of about 30 miles an hour, the wheels skidded on the wet and slippery paving. The car lurched to the side of the road, crashing into a four foot ditch and turning completely over, landing on its wheels, astraddle the ditch. The Northern Illinois Service company's bus, running between Sterling and Dixon, stopped and picked up all of the parties and rushed them to Sterling.

Today Mrs. Heckman was said to be suffering a great deal of pain from cuts and bruises about the body and an injury to her back, but it was expected that she would recover speedily. The car was badly damaged in the accident and was brought to Dixon last evening.

The first snow of the season made the paved highways dangerous at many points and numerous accidents were reported during the early evening. Two Ford coupes turned over when the wheels skidded on the slippery paving west of Dixon last night and were badly damaged, but the occupants escaped with only a shaking up.

Claims Commission is

Rushing Morris Hearing

Morris, Ill., Oct. 28.—(AP)—Still hearing evidence on the second of 25 cases scheduled for the week's hearing, the Illinois Valley Claims Commission went into its third day of hearing this morning with determination to speed up evidence. The claim of Thomas Hutchins for $16,000 damages against the Chicago Sanitary District was completed yesterday noon and the claim of John H. Larness estate for $9,000 was begun. More witnesses appeared in the Larness case today.

Facing temporary adjournment Thursday evening, the commission will endeavor today and tomorrow to get as many of the claims as possible before it, the remainder to be heard when the commission reconvenes here Nov. 16. Much of the testimony during the early cases is of a general nature which will be applied to later cases.

The commission's original docket scheduled five cases each day, but it was expected the 25 claims for $400,000 would require two weeks. The commissioners are still hoping to hold within that period. Five of the claimants are from LaSalle county, one from Cook and the remainder from Grundy.

Representative Ordered to Pay Back State Fee

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 28.—(AP)—State Representative Otto S. Sonnenmann of Carlinville was directed to pay $3,500 into the state treasury today by the supreme court. It was the court's decision that he had received a fee as prohibition inpector of former Attorney General Brundage. The court held he could not hold a state job and be a state representative at the same time.

"There are no circumstances," the court ruled, in upholding the decision of the Litchfield city court, "under which a member of the legislature could become a de facto officer of the executive department."

"No person" the constitution reads, "shall exercise any power" properly belonging to another department, so the simple question arises did the representative exercise any power of the executive department of the state government?

RAILWAY CHIEF
CLERK IS HELD
IN BEER PROBEFederal Officials to Maintain Secrecy in Investigation

BULLETIN

Chicago, Oct. 28.—(AP)—The first warrant in the federal investigation of the beer running conspiracy said to involve shipments worth $9,000,000 into Chicago annually, was issued today for Chief Clerk Borener, of the coal department of the New York Central Railroad by U. S. Commissioner Glass. It charges him with conspiracy to violate the federal prohibition laws.

Chicago, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Albert Borener, termed a chief clerk of the New York Central Lines, was held today for questioning in connection with the federal inquiry into railway traffic tricks that enabled bootleggers to unload large shipments of beer from eastern breweries in Chicago.

Secrecy attended his detention as a result of objection by investigators to premature publicity relative to details of the inquiry. District Attorney Olson threatened publicity relative to details of the inquiry. District Attorney Olson threatened newspaper with contempt of court action if they followed too closely the preliminary phases of his probe. He explained this was necessary to prevent wild rumors.

Several police captains named by railway employees in statements have been interrogated and others may be questioned before the inquiry reaches the grand jury stage, it was indicated.

Borener was reported to have told how "carloads of liquor were reconditioned while enroute to Chicago, to dodge prohibition agents, and to have named John Patton, boy mayor of Burnham, a suburb, and Jack Cusick, both frequently quizzed in beer running investigations.

The beer shipments, Borener was reported to have said, were billed as coal over the railroad with the road's coal agent as consignee, and then enroute over another railroad to a suburb of Chicago.

Stanfield is Chosen
President of Dixon C. C.

The annual election of officers of the Dixon Country Club was held last evening at a meeting of the board of directors, which resulted as follows: President—S. C. Stanfield. Vice Pres.—F. X. Newcomer. Sec. Treas.—William Albright. Several committees were selected and a complete list will be made public in a few days. Retiring President Robert Warner completed his duties after one of the most successful seasons in the history of the Dixon Country club.

BIGGEST GUN OF
U. S. ARMY WILL MAKE STOP HERETime of Arrival of U. S.
Greatest Weapon
Uncertain

Residents of Dixon and vicinity are to be able to view the largest cannon in existence in the United States within a few days. Ward E. Wood, local agent for the Chicago & North-Western announced this morning. The 740,000 pound gun of a 14 inch caliber will pass through this city en route to San Pedro, Cal., from the testing ground at Aberdeen, Md., and stop for a few hours to permit the public to inspect the big weapon. The exact date was not known today and will be announced within a few days, Mr. Wood stated. A picture of the big gun is now on display in the Dixon Chamber of Commerce window.

En route, the gigantic weapon will be seen by thousands of northern Illinoisans during the trip from Chicago to Clinton.

Tested Two Years.

For two years it has been undergoing tests at the army proving grounds in Maryland, where a crew of 200 men was required to operate the big gun. It has self-contained electrical and compressed air equipment, and under field conditions may be placed for a seven per cent traverse within two hours. On a permanent firing position prepared in advance, the big piece may be placed for a 360 degree traverse within one hour.

Special bridge covering and other equipment is required for transportation of the huge weapon across the country. The gun platform is ten feet wide.

This monstrous 14-inch gun mounted on a special railway carriage is now en route from the U. S. Proving Grounds, Aberdeen, Md., to a base in the Los Angeles Coast Defense District, and will leave Chicago over the Chicago & North-Western Ry., within a few days (the exact date to be announced later) and arrangements have been made to place the gun on exhibition at this place for a few hours.

Army's Biggest Gun.

This is the United States Army's largest and newest railway gun, which weighs 730,000 lbs., including mountings. It fires a projectile 14 inch in diameter, weighing from 1200 to 1600 lbs., propelled by a powder charge of 470 lbs. Its range is 25 miles. The length of the gun is 95 feet and 4 inches. It is being transported on a specially designed truck with total of 14 axles and 28 wheels.

One motor is used to raise and swing the gun into position and to lower it after firing. This motor when raising the gun delivers 40 horse power at 800 revolutions per minute, placing the gun in position in five minutes. Lowering is accomplished in 2 1/2 minutes with 12 horse power at 1450 revolutions per minute.

A 15 horse power motor is used for hoisting the shells and powder charges to the gun. Ammunition is supplied from cars hauled to the rear of the gun carriage. Ordnance experts point out that never before in the nation's transport history has a movement of such compactness of weight been attempted by railway from coast to coast.

A complete investigation of all available routes was made by the Engineers of the War Department and the Chicago & North-Western Ry., Union Pacific System and Southern Pacific Company were selected on account of being equipped in a most excellent way to safely transport a movement of this kind.

While it is expected that the gun will be assigned to the Los Angeles District, it is probable that it will be moved away from its home base at frequent intervals. It has been planned to have Army officers accompany the gun and be on hand to describe and explain the use of the gun to visitors. It will be a sight well worth seeing.

Funeral of Veteran of War Tomorrow P. M.

It was announced today that the casket containing the remains of Myron Cummings, World War veteran, who died Monday afternoon at the Dixon hospital, following two strokes of paralysis, will not be opened at St. Paul's Lutheran church, where funeral services will be held at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Friends may view the remains at his late residence, 215 Glena ave., up until 2:30 o'clock when short services will be held there.

The exhibit is a part of the educational program which Postmaster John E. Meyer has been carrying on for the benefit of the patrons of the Dixon postoffice.

NO DECISION BY
SUPREME COURT
IN SMALL'S CASEAdjourns Without Making Any Report in "Interest" Case

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 28.—(AP)—The supreme court of Illinois ended its October term today without deciding whether Gov. Len Small must account for approximately $1,000,000 interest money, alleged withheld while he was state treasurer. The case goes over to the December term.

A last minute change in its program led the supreme court to withhold the Small decision. It was learned that the clerk of the court had been advised a decision was ready, but when the court adjourned it held that particular decision back.

This is the procedure sometimes when some justice wishes to file a dissenting opinion, or to change the wording or content of his opinion.

Tried and Acquitted.

Tried and acquitted in 1922 of criminal charges of conspiracy and embezzlement in this connection the Governor carried his appeal to the voters in the last gubernatorial election and was reelected. This action of voters, he declared in a statement, was his vindication.

The charges were that while state treasurer in 1917 to 1919 he had loaned money to Vernon Curtis and the late Senator Edward C. Curtis through their Grant Park Bank at two percent interest and that it was reloaned at from 5 to 8 percent. The state contended that the governor unlawfully accepted a share of the profits.

This appeal was from a ruling of the Sangamon county circuit court holding him accountable. It directed that the Gov., Vernon Curtis and Mrs. Elba G. Curtis, widow and administratrix of the former senator account for "all interest, discounts, and profits earned and collected upon the public fund of Illinois during the period, Jan. 8, 1917 to Jan. 11, 1919."

Says Waterways Must Coordinate with Railroads

Chicago, Oct. 28.—(AP)—The efficiency of inland water transportation must be sought in coordination with rail service rather than as an independent and possibly hostile medium of transport, said Theodore Brent, traffic manager of the Federal Barge Lines, today before the Chicago Association of Commerce.

"Chicago's trade to the Pacific coast is slipping away to the seaboard," he said, "but given a dependable channel of eight or nine feet from Chicago to the gulf and adequate power and equipment, this territory can be regained."

Completion of the Illinois Barge Canal with its terminal facilities, and support of the Federal Barge Line were needs Brent expressed for Chicago's retention of industry.

The Federal Barge Line operates between New Orleans and St. Louis carrying 100,000 tons of freight monthly.

Chicago, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Work on the radio station donated to the University of Illinois by Roger C. Sullivan's son Bogustus, in memory of the late democratic leader, is progressing and the installation will start about the first of December. It was learned today. The station will be completed about the first of January and will go on the air not later than Jan. 15. Officials of the Western Electric Co., the builders, announced.

Former Clerk on Bonus
Board Must Go to Pen

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 28.—(AP)—Conviction of William Murphy, formerly Springfield's "best dressed young man," of forging names to bonus checks issued to world war veterans, was upheld by the supreme court today. This confirms his penitentiary sentence of from one to ten years. Murphy was employed by the Service Recognition board here.

ARMY'S "HELL DOG" PLACED
ON HEARINGCompetency of Three of Court Martial Attacked by Counsel

Washington, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Colonel William Mitchell began his defense at his court martial here today by driving from the bench three members of the court, including Major General Charles P. Sumner.

General Sumner withdrew on his own motion after he had been charged with prejudice against the defendant and Brig. Gen. A. J. Bowley was disqualified by his colleagues on the court after a defense challenge had been lodged against him on similar grounds.

Both challenges were based on utterances of the two generals against the separate air department favored by Col. Mitchell, and in support of which he used language which led to his court martial on a charge of violating good discipline.

Sharp Verbal Clash

A sharp verbal clash between Gen. Sumner and Representative Reid of Illinois, counsel for Col. Mitchell, preceded Sumner's request that the court excuse him from further attendance.

In support of his challenge, Mr. Reid read statements made by Gen. Sumner before the President's air board, and coupled with them extracts from the report of Col. Mitchell after he inspected the air defenses of the Hawaiian department at the time Col. Mitchell was court-martialed.

"I have learned for the first time," Gen. Sumner said, "of the emnity Col. Mitchell has toward me. The report he made is untrue, unfair and ignorant. This is not the place to prove the efficiency of the air service of the Hawaiian department. I can not act as a member of this court. I beg the court to excuse me from further attendance."

The court granted the request after a short consultation.

General Sumner's retirement placed Major General R. L. Howze, commanding officer of the fifth Corps Area at Columbus, O., in the presidential chair.

West Pointer Challenged

A peremptory challenge then was made by Mr. Reid against Major General F. W. Sladen, superintendent of the military academy at West Point, N. Y. This form of challenge precluded any argument and General Sladen was excused.

Only one peremptory challenge is permitted under the practice of courts martial, but any number may be challenged for cause as were Generals Sumner and Bowley. It is not required that the defendant state the reasons for a peremptory challenge.

FRIDAY'S PARADE
WILL BE CLIMAX
OF SAFETY WEEKAll Who Believe in Prevention Asked to Participate

Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock the Safety Week program will be further carried out by staging the Safety Week parade.

This parade will be composed of all of the automobile dealers, civic organizations and those who are really interested in this worth while movement.

The parade will be led by the Y. M. C. A. Boys Band in full uniform, followed by Chief of the Fire Department Thos. Coffey and full equipment and Chief of Police John D. Van Bibber and squad of uniformed policemen. The corners will be patrolled by members of the Boy Scouts under the supervision of Scout Executive Brown during the parade. It has been suggested by some of the civic organizations that they be allowed to group all of the cars of each individual organization in one body in the parade, and as requests for definite locations in the parade are already being received in large numbers it would be well to phone the Chamber of Commerce office and get definite information concerning locations in the parade.

The committee asks that cars entering will display signs, placards, or streamers representing Safety Week in keeping with the Safety Campaign. There are no objections offered by the committee prohibiting advertising of cars sold by the automobile dealers.

Mystic Workers Installed Officers

Dixon Lodge No. 27, met in regular session at Union Hall, Oct. 23. Installation was the main feature of the evening. Secretary Robert Toole acted as Installation Officer and Worthy William Jones, Prefect of Rock Falls Lodge No. 32, acted as Installing Conductor. The short form was used and the following officers installed:

Prefect—Arthur Martinson.
Monitor—Maudie Durrance.
Correspondent—Ethel Trotter.
Ranker—Olive Heltner.
Marshal—John Martenson.
Warder—Walter E. White.
Sentinel—Ruth Smith.
Supervisor, 3 Years—Wm. Lohr.
Supervisor to Fill Vacancy—Augusta Martenson.

Following the installation a program of music, vocal solos and readings was enjoyed. The retiring Prefect, Viola Strub, was presented with a traveling bag and the retiring correspondent, Mayor F. D. Palmer, with a box of cigars. They responded with a few well chosen words. The installing officers were also presented with a token for the wonderful work done. At the close of the meeting the social committee served a two-course dinner that was greatly enjoyed by all and the committee should have hearty thanks for their first attempt at serving a big meal to so many. Visitors were present from Fulton, Rock Falls, Sterling and Walnut.

FASHION HINTS—Silk Ensembles Shown.

The silk ensemble is prominent in fall fashions, the most popular silks being the bengalines and heavy-ribbed weaves, combined with crepe de chine or a lighter weight silk.

Lavish Use of Fur.

The majority of winter coats have fur collars and fur bands on them. Often the fur is applied in small bands or patches instead of in the regular manner.

They're Still Short.

Except for period costumes, skirts remain very short—from 12 to 16 inches from the floor.

Long Sleeves for Evening.

The evening gown with long sleeves is being featured by several French houses, the sleeves being very ornate, graceful and transparent.

The Sash Returns.

The sash is of increasing importance, and is frequently the point at which the trimming and color of a frock is concentrated.

For Formal Affairs.

Gold brocades and laces make most exciting evening gowns, particularly when banded with rich fur or jeweled with bright colored stones.

Marriage of Oregon Girl is Announced

Mr. and Mrs. M. McCulloch of Oregon have announced the marriage of their daughter, Janet Calderwood, to Clarence Theodore Johnson, also of Oregon. They were married in Rockford by the Rev. Benson at the Lutheran parsonage, Oct. 21.

They were attended by Miss Stella Mammenga and Curtis Bergner, both of Oregon.

The bride was dressed in white georgette and silver lace over white satin with slippers and hose in silver, also.

BY SISTER MARY.

Breakfast—Stewed prunes, cereal, thin cream, broiled bacon, crisp graham toast, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—Baked spinach, rye bread, cottage cheese, strawberry preserves, cup cakes, milk, tea.

Dinner—Roast shoulder of lamb, boiled potatoes in parsley butter, mashed turnips, head lettuce with Russian dressing, whole wheat rolls, floating island, milk, coffee.

Most children like small cakes and cookies, so a set of tiny muffin pans is a good investment. The tiny cake need not be halved for small persons who find a whole cake far more desirable than half a cake. A simple cake with the meal is preferable to candy between meals.

Baked Spinach.
Two cups cooked spinach, 1 tablespoon minced onion, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon pepper, few gratings nutmeg, 2 eggs, 4 tablespoons cream, 1/2 cup buttered crumbs.
Rub spinach through a vegetable ricer. Add onion, salt, pepper and nutmeg. Beat eggs slightly with cream and stir into spinach mixture. Turn into a well-buttered baking dish, cover with buttered crumbs and bake 20 minutes in a moderately hot oven. (Copyright, 1925, NEA Service, Inc.)

BY CYNTHIA GREY—

Mrs. Millin is of the hausfrau type! And the critics again are marveling. They always marvel when they hear of a woman who has achieved a career and at the same time has fulfilled her mission as wife and mother.

Mrs. Millin, the famous author of "God's Stepchildren," lives at Johannesburg, South Africa. Interviewers who have sought her out agree that, in addition to writing a novel a year and weekly reviews and articles, she is a housekeeper of the first grade, is happily married and has a garden in which she works herself.

The busiest woman in the world today is the Queen of Rumania. She has a big job on her hands if ever a woman had. Her "career," if you want to call it that, is pretty well marked out. And reasonably familiar to the world. Yet she is one of the famous mothers of the world, too.

Having a brilliant and famous career has not made her one jot less the hombody, the wife and mother.

Mary Roberts Rinehart, Kathleen Norris, Ethel Barrymore, and of course Schumann-Heink, are in the top groups of their respective "career" fields. Yet all are homeloving, all are mothers and all appear to have a great deal of time for their families.

The woman who upon marriage says, "Now my career is ended," believes that only because she wants it to be true. She is tired of the effort of that career. She welcomes the release which marriage offers.

There is no contest between family and career for woman.

Both are as much within the grasp of woman as they are open to man.

Mrs. Lowden to Entertain Club

Mrs. Frank O. Lowden will be hostess of the members of the Oregon Woman's club at Sinitissippi farms Thursday.

Miss Margaret Enders, a brilliant speaker and club woman, will give a travel talk and will speak on China, where she spent several years.

Relief Corp in Pleasant Meeting

Dixon Woman's Relief Corps, No. 218, Auxiliary to the Grand Army of the Republic, met in regular session Monday afternoon in G. A. R. hall.

Two candidates were balloted on; the relief committee reported considerable good work done in their line; and the floral committee chairman told of sending baskets of fruit or flowers to several sick members; also word was given out of others in whom all are interested who will be remembered later.

Mrs. Goodrich, P. P., presented the Corps with a large flag, which was most highly appreciated and our many thanks are due her for same.

The Corps is in receipt of an invitation to Aurora Corps to a luncheon and reception for the new president, Laura B. Evans and it is hoped some may be able to attend.

The Relief committee will hold an all-day meeting at G. A. R. hall today to which anyone will be welcome. Talks by several who had visited at other Corps were enjoyed. A good crowd was in attendance and the meeting was most interesting.

Cousin of Dixon Woman Sweet Singer

E. Clinton Keithley, cousin of Mrs. Emma Petre of this city, and author of the very popular ballad, "Garden of Old Fashioned Roses," sang over radio station KYW yesterday afternoon a delightful selection, in honor of Mrs. Petre, "If Our Thought Wishes Would Ever Come True." Mrs. Petre had friends present yesterday afternoon who enjoyed Mr. Keithley's singing very much. Every Tuesday and Thursday afternoon he broadcasts over KYW. A few weeks ago he and his family were guests of Mrs. Petre at her home in Dixon.

Entertained at Bridge Yesterday

Mrs. C. A. Todd and daughter, Mrs. Jayson Miller were hostesses yesterday afternoon at their home on North Galena avenue, at a delightful bridge party, entertaining guests for eight tables. The decorations of autumn flowers and foliage, chrysanthemums predominating, were exceptionally lovely.

At the close of the happy afternoon Miss Carrie Rosenthal was awarded the favor for high score; Mrs. Frank Edwards won second favor and Mrs. Charles Leake won the consolation favor. The hostesses served most tempting refreshments.

Good Thoughts for Good People

Let us dwell with the good thoughts of God only, trusting their all-power to annihilate every belief in an opposite. How beautiful the way! How completely must it banish all fear! If we walk in this path, if we thus "do that which is good," we shall surely find ourselves being led constantly into greater assurance, greater fearlessness.

SUNSHINE IN WINTER.

At the recent electrical show in New York there was exhibited a light bulb that would put a coat of tan on your skin, and do it quicker than sunshine. Moreover, the doctors say, its rays will do the person they shine on exactly as much good as the actual sunshine.

The bulb has been scientifically developed to produce the invisible ultra-violet rays by which the beneficent effects of sunlight are accomplished. Those rays are said to shine deep into the body, vitalizing the blood and stimulating the organs and glands. They are responsible for the "sunshine cure" of rickets and tuberculous children. They operate as a powerful and wholesome stimulant.

Now it won't matter so much whether the sun shines or not. That wonderful bulb, the doctors say, can bring sunlight into any home, any climate, any season. When it is put on the market and made available for ordinary folk, it should prove a godsend, especially in dull northern regions which have little sunshine in the winter months. It should be good not only for children and invalids, but for everybody.

When an artificial sunbath can be obtained in one's bedroom, whenever desired, giving in a few minutes the equivalent of an hour or two of direct exposure to summer sunlight, our winters should become immensely more healthful.

BIRTHDAY WALKING.

Weston was all right in his way, but Weston was a professional. He walked for fame and a living. James A. Hocking of Yonkers, N. Y., walks for fun and personal satisfaction, and doesn't care a hang whether anybody notices him or not. Which makes his achievement all the more remarkable. And he has a fetching way of celebrating birthdays.

Mr. Hocking recently observed his 70th birthday by walking seventy miles. Not by starting on a seventy-mile walk, but by tramping seventy miles on that day. He was so eager about it that he started at 2 o'clock in the morning.

Every year for twenty years he has done that on his birthday—walked a mile for every years of his age. And altogether, since his 50th birthday, he has walked more than 60,000 miles.

This is an inspiring example. But the energetic Mr. Hocking may get into trouble with his system sooner or later. Just see where it's going to push him. On his 100th birthday he will have to walk one hundred miles, and then keep right on rolling up his score. Along about his 150th birthday, if he doesn't look out, the old gentleman may find himself overdoing. And if he keeps on walking say three thousand miles a year, no telling how long he may live.

FEWER FARMERS.

Possibly we don't need to worry about fewer people on the farms. It means progress.

Fifty years ago, an inquirer finds, there were 77,000 farmers and 75,000 farm laborers for every million people in the United States. Today there are only 57,000 farmers and 37,500 farm laborers for every million people.

Is the nation starving? It is not. There is plenty of food produced. Crop prices show that, and exports show it.

The plain fact is that it takes only about half as many people to raise food for a given population as it took half a century ago. Farm machinery and better farming methods have made that possible.

Thus half the farm workers are set free for industrial work. And it is industrial work added to farming that sets society ahead. Food keeps people alive. With that little duty attended to, industry gives them a chance to provide themselves with comforts of all kinds, and accumulate wealth—which is frozen comfort, to be used when wanted. And also to ride in flivvers.

The press in Germany is bitter against Coolidge because he re-expressed the truth in his Omaha speech that the World war was one of despotism against civilization. Nothing hurts an offender like the plain truth.

"My son," says a rich father, "you put me in mind of the Prince of Wales. You only come home to prepare for another trip."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

"I also see that you like high living," said Mrs. Gipsy.

Nancy and Nick were having a fine time in High Jinks Land. Everyone was so jolly and lighthearted.

"How do you like it?" asked Mister Corn Dodger, shaking the ashes out of his corn cob pipe and filling it up again with dried corn silk.

"It's even so jolly," said Nick. "Isn't it, Nancy?"

"Yes, it is," said Nancy, shaking her little Dutch cap until the wide wings on it flapped. "I wish we could have our fortunes told like the Seare Crow and Jack O' Lantern."

"Well, you may," said Mister Corn Dodger kindly. "I'll ask Mrs. Gipsy if she—There!" he said all at once. "The Man in the Moon is having his fortune told now. He's staying a good while, I think. He said he was just on his way to Norwich, but stopped in at High Jinks Land to say how do you do to his friends."

"Let's hear what Mrs. Gipsy is telling him," said Nick.

"So the Twins and Mister Corn Dodger crowded up close. "What's the Man in the Moon's hand, 'I see many interesting things. Stars and clouds and the moon. Are you an astronomer?"

"No, ma'am, I am not," said the Man in the Moon, "but you might say that I am a star-gazer."

"I also see that you like high living," said Mrs. Gipsy.

"That's right," said the Man in the Moon. "I like to live high."

"It is strange then," said Mrs. Gipsy. "That sometimes you get very thin. Isn't that so?"

"It certainly is," said the Man in the Moon. "Sometimes I am not even a quarter full. Indeed, I am only full once a month."

"You sleep all day and stay up all night," said Mrs. Gipsy. "You must be a very gay person."

you something and I want you always to remember it, no matter what anyone says of you. Mother would believe anything you told her if the whole world said that it was not so."

The boy raised his head quickly, his face lighting a little.

"If Daddy said it was not so, would you believe me, Mover?"

"If Daddy said it was not so and you said it was, my boy, I would think that Daddy was mistaken. I know you have never told me an untruth in your life and you certainly would not tell me one about your little brother."

Little Jack said nothing, but if you, Ruth, could have seen the way he went over to that tiny little bed and quickly and tenderly picked up Buddy, I am sure you would have cried with great thankfulness because I had so quickly succeeded in replacing self-respect and loyalty and love in my oldest boy's mind. TOMORROW—Letter from Leslie Prescott to Ruth Burke—Continued.

Dr. Cummings' Health Column

BY DR. HUGH S. CUMMING
Surgeon General, United States Public Health Service

How should you care for weak feet? The persistence of the attitude of abduction or turning outward of the foot is the one characteristic symptom common to all weak feet.

Certain symptoms begin to appear when the arches are overstrained—pain in the foot either just behind the toes or over the instep or in the calves of the legs or even in the thighs, and sometimes in the back. The pain is not caused because the foot is flat or everted or improperly used, but is caused by strain or injury to the muscles and the ligaments. It comes on long before any deformity of the foot is noticed.

This pain if often falsely attributed to rheumatism. It is usually accompanied by fatigue and a diminished ability to stand or walk. It usually disappears when the person is off his feet. In such symptoms appear, do not go to a shoe store to have the feet treated and do not buy ready-made arch supports, but consult an orthopedic surgeon.

Any examination by a good orthopedist is a thorough one and will definitely determine whether the feet are weak or not. He will prescribe arch supports and special shoes. The following exercises for strengthening the arches are prescribed:

Rise as high as possible on the toes and, while on the toes, turn the heels outward and the inner side of the foot upward, then slowly come down again. Repeat 20 or 30 times.

Place the feet with the toes turned in and stand on the outer border of the foot. Then rise as high as possible on the toes and slowly sink down, turning the foot so that the weight rests on the outer border. Repeat 20 or 30 times.

When sitting down, it is a good habit to cross the feet (NOT THE LEGS). This brings the feet to rest on their outer border. Bicycling is also a good exercise for the feet.

Skating is Bad for the Feet

Skating, however, is very bad for weak feet. In most cases the correct arch support, the proper shoes and suitable exercises will give relief and sometimes effect a cure. Then, if the feet are not abused, the arch supports may in many cases be dispensed with.

There are certain common conditions of the feet which sometimes can be remedied by home treatment. Cracks or abrasions between the toes should be carefully cleansed with soap and water, dried with absorbent cotton and covered with zinc ointment. Absorbent cotton should be used to keep the raw surfaces apart.

Excessive sweating of the feet may be treated by cleansing the feet with soap and water and then soaking them for 15 minutes in a 1 per cent solution of formaldehyde.

Corns and callouses can be removed by the local applications, but they should be prevented. If one insists against advice on cutting corns and callouses care should be taken to have the knife or scissors sterile and to paint the surface with tincture of iodine, both before and after trimming. If blood is accidentally drawn, an antiseptic dressing should be applied.

The pain of inflamed bunions can be relieved by rest and hot applications, but the bunions themselves require attention of an orthopedic surgeon.

How to Correct Deformed Feet

Deformities of the feet, such as outward turned big toe and overlapping, can, in many cases be successfully treated by the various appliances which can be bought in stores selling orthopedic supplies.

How to Correct Deformed Feet

Deformities of the feet, such as outward turned big toe and overlapping, can, in many cases be successfully treated by the various appliances which can be bought in stores selling orthopedic supplies.

For instance there can be purchased a splint which is attached to the inner side of the foot with a strap and to which is strapped the big toe. This splint keeps the toe in proper position. It can be worn at night, and, if persisted in, will sometimes straighten the abnormality.

Small pads of cotton may be placed between the toes at night to keep them apart. If large roomy shoes are worn, the splint and the cotton may be left in place during the day

Many systematic diseases first manifest themselves by symptoms in the feet.

Gout is one of these diseases and shows itself in the foot by inflammation of the joint of the big toe. Diabetes is another of these diseases and it may first manifest itself by ulceration or gangrene of the toes.

Arterio-sclerosis and narrowing of the caliber of the arteries often first manifest themselves by circulatory disturbances in the feet, which result in ulceration and gangrene.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and breaks the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Company, Atlanta, Ga. (adv.)

Is Today Your Birth Anniversary?

WEDNESDAY, OCT. 28
If so, you are generous.
And of a pleasure-loving nature.
You are happy in everything you do.
You have a talent for music.
Which should be cultivated.
You are easy-going in life and in business.
Your disposition is gentle and sympathetic.
And you never refuse aid to others.
You will never be wealthy.
But your home life will be delightful.

Point by Point a Better Car

The New Paige Landau Sedan has no equal near $2395

Compare the new Paige Landau Sedan point by point with its nearest competitors in the luxurious, big car field.

Paige leads in the following physical qualities—the qualities that make a fine car fine: piston displacement, weight, wheel-base, length of rear springs, size of tires, exterior finish (two-tone), upholstery (mohair velour), equipment and—the final deciding factor—price! Paige Landau Sedan sells for hundreds less.

Considering horsepower, fashionable appearance, roominess, interior finish and riding quality—it will cost you much more to buy the equal of Paige Landau Sedan. Why pay it?

Your Clothes Should Give You An Athletic Look

THE styles were never more becoming for men; shoulders are wider; lapels are wider; buttons and pockets are higher. Coats are narrow through the hips—they make a man look taller and full through the chest, athletic.

Trousers are full and taper slightly to the shoe. There are the new ideas and you'll like them. Hart Schaffner and Marx have given us their styles that the best dressed men of America are wearing right now.

There is nothing newer or better; there is nothing bigger than the value we are offering either.

Something new---a Hart Schaffner
& Marx suit for

$33.50

It is an amazing value and only possible through the tremendous volume, buying power and concentration of Hart Schaffner and Marx fine all wool Worsted and smart new style values that you can't surpass anywhere.

"THE LIMITED MAIL" with Monte Blue, is a dramatization of this story by Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.

SYNOPSIS

Little Bobby Fowler has fallen into a mountain stream. Bob Wilson sees him just as the Limited Mail approaches a landslide. It is a case of saving the boy or preventing the death of many by rushing forward and signaling the train. He chooses the latter course and aboard the Limited finds Caroline, his sweetheart. The two hurry them to the stream and find that little Bob has been saved—by Spike, the convict.

CHAPTER X—Continued

When Spike was revived, he whispered to Bob of what had happened—fugitive. "Seen de kid's blond watching faces, measuring his chance to make away again at the first moment, for Spike did not forget even in this moment of repentance and service that he was a—fugitive. "Seen de kid's blond noodle floating past the ledge where I bin hidin' since de other wreck when I made me getaway. So I just hooked him in, and started to climb up. Dat's what tuckered me. Only have one hand dat fit fer climbin' and holdin' someone at de same time—"

And that one good hand was pressed now in the strong, grateful hands of Bob Wilson—a clasp of forgiveness and of friendship that would endure to the end of life.

"An', say, Bob—I never seen wot was on dat poster. I just guessed dat because you torn it down it was—"

Bob looked candidly at Caroline and at Spike, and explained in the fullness of a sense of relief.

"That was a police broadcast for me because my father, all other

Bob did not know why she should be beside him.

methods in his search for me having failed, requested the countryside co-operation of police departments to locate me. After he disowned me, he evidently regretted it, and instituted search. But my pride was such that I'd sooner have died than gone back to a disgrace and conditional forgiveness. The rest I'll tell you some other time, Caroline!"

"It won't be necessary, Bob, for I know—about Jane Gordon. And I know, further, something that made me wish so hard that you'd come back, or at least get in touch with me. Your father had your marriage to Jane Gordon annulled—you have been free all these years—"

Bob was beginning to discredit the evidence of his ears and eyes—it all seemed such an incredible turnover from the assaults of Fate he was so accustomed to. Yet—there was no gainsaying the evidence of his lips, pressed close to Caroline's.

Preparations were underway now for the return of the Limited to Crater City until such time as the Gorge could be made passable. Bobby, a little bewildered and a little ill, was safe in the expert care of a doctor among the passengers. Bob had wondered what the attitude of the trainmen toward him would be; he was set at ease by their hearty expressions of gratitude and friendship. Evidently, in their minds, his former mistake had been overshadowed and expiated by the magnitude of his present achievement. He was at peace, then, with his comrades; with the world—and, greatest matter of all—secure in the love of Caroline. Therefore, he determined to return to Crater City on the Limited and see everything through to the happy

New Motorman Cause of

Accident in Oak Park

Chicago, Oct. 27—(AP)—William Kessler, street car motorman, was severely injured this morning when his two car train collided with a truck and trailer operated by Ira Dunaway of Rockford, Illinois, in Oak Park. Witnesses said Dunaway apparently did not know the car operated on a through street and started to cross it without stopping. Dunaway was only slightly injured, but several passengers were cut by flying glass. The trailer was demolished.

Pasteurized Education

"Lessons as usual" was the decree of Miss Katy Lacy, above, 20-year-old teacher at the Texas Orphans' Home, after she and 21 of her child wards had been sent to the Texas Pasteur Institute recently for antihydrophobia treatment. All had been bitten by a mad dog, which Miss Lacy heroically fought off from other children at the home. Daily classes were continued for the orphans by the girl instructor while the Pasteur treatment was being given them.

MICHIGAN PLANS NAVY DAY ALL OF ITS OWN SATURDAY

Hope to Give Annapolis Football Team Real Reception

Chicago, Oct. 28.—(AP)—National Navy Day having passed into history, Michigan is setting the stage for a Navy Day of its own with the football prowess of the nation's potential Admirals under consideration.

Both the Wolverines and Navy are undefeated though the Middies tied 10 to 10 with Princeton.

That the clash in Ann Arbor Saturday may develop into a duel for individual honors between Shapley and Friedman is indicated in their respective practice. Coach Yost is stressing aerial tactics and Friedman is polishing his accurate forward passing and catching.

Red Grange & Company, finish their preparation today for their invasion of the east, which starts tomorrow. Some inkling of the methods of Kreuz, Penn fullback, is being furnished the Illinois by Milt Olander, assistant coach, who tutored the eastern player when he went to Western Normal at Kalamazoo.

The special trains bearing 500 rooters and the famous Illinois 150 piece band will accompany the team.

Notre Dame Goes South. Notre Dame also starts tomorrow toward Atlanta to meet Georgia Tech. Of the regulars Jim McMullen is out of the game with a bad shoulder and Rigali, right end has a bad leg that may keep him from active participation. Both may be saved for next week's game with Penn.

The Wisconsin Badgers make ready for their visit to Minneapolis Saturday. They need snow shoes for out door practice. Despite the icy field, they are working outdoors, for similar conditions are forecast for the meeting with Minnesota. Weather conditions likewise affect the Gophers' work, light scrimmage and signal drills being the practice program.

The coming Hoosier invasion of Chicago that brings Purdue to Stagg Field and Indiana to Northwestern, is inspiring the Maroons and Purple to redoubt efforts. Northwestern seeks new ends to replace Seidel and Ashed, regular wing men, hurt in the Tulane game.

Indiana and Purdue meanwhile, are not idle.

Ohio State, mindful of the 7-7 tie last year with Wooster, is enlarging its backfield threat for its neighbor.

Iowa, with the Wabash game in view, is hunting more reserves from whom replacements can be drawn.

American Association pitchers and Burwell is even better than Fitzsimmons, according to Western critics.

In order that Chicago high school football players may see how it is done in the best football circles, motion pictures taken under the supervision of Knute Rockne, Notre Dame coach, are being shown in the schools under the auspices of a Chicago newspaper.

Captains of Western Conference football teams could form a "Harold" club. There are four of them—Harold Grange, Illinois; Harold Cunningham, Ohio State; Harold Harneson, Purdue; and Harold Griffen, Iowa.

Ten Bicycle Racers in Bad Spill in Long Race. Chicago, Oct. 28.—(AP)—Recovered from the effects of a spill that sent ten riders in a heap and rendered Bobby Walworth and Harry Horan unconscious, the six day bike race at the Coliseum at the end of the 57th hour saw Horan and Horner maintaining their lead at 911 miles, 7 laps 122 points.

Croley ad Winter had an equal mileage and 87 points. Three teams were a lap behind the leaders and the rest of the dozen participants stretched two or more laps behind.

The team of Allen and Roman retired last night because of Roman's illness.

Forty Boys Took Part in Last Week's Hikes. Last week over forty boys enjoyed the two hikes that were conducted by the physical director. The boys cooked their own meals and this was done without cooking utensils. Strenuous games were played and the boys were sorry that the vacation was not for a longer period. More hikes will follow as the time permits. On later hikes it will be possible for the boys to win prizes as they did on the last two. Prizes were given for fire building, cooking and for stories written about the hikes.

Interest in Bowling at Association Increasing. Interest in bowling is growing among the members of the Y. The "Star League" that commenced last week will be moved forward another peg tonight when the Reynolds Wire Co. meets the Inde-Penn Oil team. Captain Gerdes of the Reynolds team has made all the necessary arrangements with his men and claims to have gathered together a group of men who can bowl 250 regularly under competition. Of course Capt. C. V. Chapman of the Inde-Penn Oil team acknowledged the fact that he was from Missouri and would have to see the pins fall before he would give up. Ladies Showing Interest in Life Saving Lessons. Several of the women who are taking part in the swimming classes are very much interested in the life saving examinations that Mr. Snapp has said he would give before the summer swimming program opens. These exams are very difficult and few are capable of passing them. Under the proper training however these difficulties are decreased to a minimum and it is hoped that by gradual work of practice and a building up of endurance several of the ladies will be able to make excellent grades in the final test.

Intermediates Defeated by Sterling: First Game. The intermediate class of the Y had its first taste of real competition last week when they met and were defeated by an independent team from Sterling. The victory was not as sweet as the score might indicate (24 to 20). The Dixon boys had never played together before and really did very well considering the fact. Sterling lagged in the scoring by one point until the last quarter and then were able to make the necessary goals to put over a hard earned victory.

DOUGLAS MAC LEAN PRAISED FOR HIS WORK IN PICTURE

"Seven Keys to Baldpate" Makes Him Author in Distress

Claudia Cassidy, movie reviewer for a Chicago paper, has the following to say of Douglas MacLean, former Dixon young man, who is now a star of the films:

"Seven Keys to Baldpate" isn't as devastatingly funny as "Introduce Me," but it is an absorbing comedy with a neat punch tucked away in the last reel. Concealed with generous portions of mystery and melodrama, it comes forth an excellent vehicle for Douglas MacLean of the expressive wooden face and faultless tailoring, and it proves happily that the hard-working comedian and his director are headed in the right direction.

Mr. MacLean has deserted the alpenstock for the portable typewriter; instead of loving cups he collects royalties. To be exact, he is William Halowell, author of stirring tales of adventure and on his way home from an ocean voyage taken for the sole purpose of writing the new book which is to give victorious thrills to the multitude. His publisher has complacently scattered a hundred thousand for advertising and has sold a half million copies in advance, so it is naturally something of a jolt to that round gentleman when he discovers that Halowell's sole literary efforts on the trip have been the consistent composition of cablegrams to his pretty daughter. By no means a reticent soul, he informs the rising young author that he is minus a publisher and a fiancée. Whereupon Halowell develops a sporting instinct and promises to write the book in twenty-four hours, providing he is given a place of absolute quiet. Baldpate Inn, boarded up for the winter, is donated to the cause by his hopeful rival and Halowell becomes the possessor of the caretaker's key, said to be the only one in existence.

Through all the skirmishing Mr. MacLean preserves his startled dignity and that is the most amusing bit of acting he could offer. The role he plays is an excellent choice for his talents and a few more of its possibilities will put the star in an enviable comic niche. He is a pleasant relief from the baggy trousered clowns who overflow the screen in unending imitation.

MANY ARE DRAWN INTO PROBE BIG BEER SYNDICATE

City Officials, Police, Railroad Men Involved in Running?

Chicago, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Several Chicago office holders, officials of Joliet, Aurora and Peoria, ten Chicago police captains and employees of five railroads have been drawn into the federal investigation of Chicago's $9,000,000 a year beer syndicate.

Some of them were reported named by eight employees of the New York Central Railroad questioned by J. L. McDowell assistant federal prosecutor. Representatives of the Erie and Baltimore and Ohio railroads also were interrogated.

W. L. Harper, general coal and coke agent of the New York Central, threw light on reports that beer was run into Chicago from the east with railroad employees' connivance, federal prosecutors said. Harper explained that shipments of beer were reexamined and recounted by forged orders.

He produced records, the government men said, which showed that his name had been forged to orders of beer shipped from a Corning, N. Y., brewery, causing it to be recognized at Elkhart, Ind., in an attempt to confuse prohibition agents.

City Collector Questioned. One city official questioned was Thomas Kane, city collector, who had been under investigation during the sacramental wine investigation several months ago. Prosecutors would not disclose anything he told them.

The investigation of police connections may reach such lengths as to require the aid of Chief Collins, the district attorneys intimated.

Coincident with the inquiry which will culminate in grand jury action, E. C. Yellowley, federal prohibition administrator, revoked six whiskey permits of physicians and druggists and summoned fifty others to his office to show cause why they should not lose their jobs.

Meanwhile detective squads warring on gunmen, liquor runners, caused the death of James Devito, bootlegger, killed when his automobile, laden with moonshine liquor, crashed into another in his efforts to elude a pursuing police squad.

Too Much Efficiency

By E. J. Rath

BEGIN HERE TODAY

JOHN W. BROOKE, hardware magnate, has left the city on a protracted business trip. Before leaving he signed a contract to have his household operated by the ECONOMY AND EFFICIENCY CORPORATION, LIMITED. The agreement requires the company to place the Brooke household on a thoroughly business-like and efficient basis before the return of Brooke. None in the Brooke household are aware of the storm that is brewing.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

THE deep-toned clock in the entrance-hall of the Brooke mansion lacked one minute of seven. Horace, the butler, had taken his stand in front of it, watching the great minute-hand crawl slowly along the last stage of its hourly journey. Ere that journey was completed the master of the household would be ringing at the door, probably when fifteen seconds of the hour remained. For Mr. Brooke, being a punctual business man, was an equally punctual father.

There was a faint expression of perplexity and disappointment on the ruddy countenance of Horace when the came a sharp ring at the bell, with fully forty-five seconds of the hour remaining. The butler sensed something unusual. The master was ahead of time; also, there was a note of impatience in his ring. Horace went to the door with an indefinable anticipation of spirit.

It was not John W. Brooke who came in the vestibule.

The finger of the bell was a much younger person. He glanced at the butler sharply, then motioned to a large grip that rested beside him.

"Mine," he said briefly. "Take it in, please."

Immediately he stepped past the butler and entered the Brooke mansion.

Horace momentarily forgot the stranger in his contemplation of the grip. Somehow the grip seemed portentous. It signified mystery to the butler. He took a step forward. The Brooke limousine was not at the curb. This was another extraordinary thing. Nor was there the least sign of Mr. Brooke, who should at that instant, according to established order, have been standing in front of the butler, saying, "Good evening, Horace."

With a gasp that was only half suppressed, Horace turned quickly and entered the house, picking up the grip as he did so. The bag was heavy and evidently well filled.

The stranger was standing in the hall, contemplating with plain disfavor a knight in armor, or, rather, a suit of armor that had no knight within. He turned as Horace appeared.

"Where are the children?" he asked.

Horace stared. The familiarity of the question jolted him. He did not know this person who asked for "the children," but he did know that he was an utter stranger to the Brooke mansion.

"Mr. Brooke is not at home yet, sir."

"Certainly not. He won't be. Where are the children?"

The stranger whipped off his overcoat and handed that garment, together with his hat, to Horace, who received them mechanically, after the fashion of an excellent servant. Yet the butler, for all his outward calm, was an agitated person within. Mr. Brooke would not be there? Extraordinary! Yes, even ominous. Such a thing had never happened before. Where was he?

Horace involuntarily glanced downward at the grip, which he still carried. It was strangely heavy. Could it be possible that his master—Oh, horrors, no!

"The children are in the library, sir—to the right."

The stranger wheeled and walked quickly in the given direction. As he disappeared through the portiers Horace was still standing in the hall, clinging to his burden and staring with open mouth.

The library of the Brooke mansion was a very large room, nearly half of the width of the house and more than half its depth. It was a real library; that is, it contained books. Two paces inside the doorway the stranger paused and glanced alertly about him.

Off in the far corner was a young man, yawning over a newspaper. In the embrasure of a window was a half-grown girl, staring idly down at the lawn. Near the center of the room, directly in front of the visitor sat a young woman, carelessly turning the pages of a magazine.

"Hello, daddy," she said, without looking up. "Just a second and I'll kiss you."

It was not John W. Brooke who came in the vestibule. The finger of the bell was a much younger person. He glanced at the butler sharply, then motioned to a large grip that rested beside him.

"Mine," he said briefly. "Take it in, please."

Yet the butler, for all his outward calm, was an agitated person within. Mr. Brooke would not be there? Extraordinary! Yes, even ominous. Such a thing had never happened before. Where was he?

Horace involuntarily glanced downward at the grip, which he still carried. It was strangely heavy. Could it be possible that his master—Oh, horrors, no!

"The children are in the library, sir—to the right."

The stranger wheeled and walked quickly in the given direction. As of the young girl, who had now joined the group.

"Yes; my sister," supplied the elder girl.

The stranger took a step forward and presented a small bit of pasteboard. The three Brooke children, their heads close together, read:

H. HEDGE, E. E.

Then they looked up at the stranger. He was unfolding a document of foolscap size. In the lower left-hand corner they glimpsed a large red seal. The stranger began to read.

"I, John W. Brooke, during the period of my absence from home, do hereby appoint and constitute as head of my domestic household one Henry Hedge, the bearer of this document upon whom I confer full authority to manage said household in every respect, to care for it, maintain it, guard it, and in every manner provide for its needs and its security. I do designate the said Henry Hedge as the personal guardian of my children, William W., Constance T., and Alice, and I confer upon him, during my absence, all such authority as I possess concerning them. I hereby charge my said children to obey the

"Hello, Daddy, just a second and I'll kiss you."

"Very good," said the stranger. Constance Brooke leaped from her chair with a cry of dismay and confronted a man whom she had never before beheld. The young man came out of the far corner, tossed his newspaper aside and ranged himself by the side of his sister. The girl in the window turned and stared.

"I—I thought you were my father," stammered Constance, her cheeks red.

"His representative," said the stranger, with a slight bow.

"His rep—Isn't he here? Didn't he come home with you?"

"No; he didn't come home with me. He is not coming home."

"Not at all. He is well. I'll explain. Sit down. Here's my card."

There was something brusque as well as brisk about the stranger. He talked as one with authority. An air of complete confidence flitted him as snugly as his well-cut clothes. His voice was by no means unpleasant, yet it had a certain ring of command that was not grateful to the ear.

"Miss Constance Brooke, I believe?" inquired the stranger, as he produced his card-case.

"Yes—certainly."

"Mr. William Brooke?" glancing at the young man.

That person nodded.

"And Miss Alice?" continued the stranger, with a nod in the direction of the young girl, who had now joined the group.

"Signed" JOHN W. BROOKE.

The three Brooke children spoke not a word. They simply stared at Henry Hedge, as though fascinated by some strange spectacle. He turned the face of the document to show them and exhibited the bold signature they knew so well. There was no mistaking the handwriting of John W. Brooke. Vaguely they observed the names of two persons designated as witnesses, and a third name which was that of a notary.

But the thing that riveted their glances was the great seal, it stared out at them from the white paper like an unblinking and menacing red eye, glowering at them.

Mr. Hedge produced another document, of a less threatening aspect, and this he also read, in a calm but incisive tone.

SAYS YOUTH OF COUNTRY DON'T GET ANY CREDIT

Good Never Shown Up; Bad is Always Enlarged Upon

Kansas City, Mo.—That the dismal picture of erring youth, portrayed so frequently these days, has its better and brighter side was the contention made here by Frank S. Land, founder and Grand Scribe of the Order of DeMolay. He voiced the opinion that if one would take time to compile statistics on the clean, upright youth of America, he would change his viewpoint on the nation's future citizenship.

"The good deeds a young fellow does usually are unrecognized or taken for granted," said Mr. Land. "However, let this same chap get caught in the least unlawful act and his name is blazoned forth on the printed page and banded from mouth to mouth. A vast amount of comment greets his bad act but interminable silence his good. My experiences lead me to believe that ninety-five percent of the young men of this country are on the level. The other five percent include the chaps who have either gone completely bad or are on the criminal fringe. "The young men of today will in the future govern our country, perhaps, just a little better than it is being handled now," concluded Mr. Land.

RE-DISCOVERING ILLINOIS

by LESTER B. CROSBY

Illinois Chamber of Commerce

Canton, Ill.—When I sit down to write the story of Canton I find that I have at hand some very remarkable facts. For twenty-six weeks I have been traveling about Illinois, from Cairo to Rockford and from Quincy to Danville seeking truths that may be recorded and woven into the "Story of Illinois."

But nowhere have I found a story of greater human interest or one that I believe will be of wider inspiration and value than the story I have found in Canton. I seem to have found an epoch of the human mind; a revelation of what a change can be wrought with united effort.

Canton was one hundred years old this year. The city celebrated its centennial in August with a three-day celebration. But as I rode about this hundred-year-old city of 12,000 people today I noted that almost all of the really worth-while public showed amazing newness.

Could it be possible, I asked myself, that this city had plodded along for a century, working individually, pecking away, each man for himself, expanding slowly and with circumscribed limits—then suddenly to start to bloom? It didn't seem possible.

Fresh paint, newly turned earth, bright concrete, woodwork that still smells of the forest. I found them on every corner of Canton. Only organization and unity of purpose could do a thing like that. I sought to find out why.

I do not hope here to be able to record all the things that have brought about this new Canton. I would not want to criticize those pioneers of a past era or question their motives or purposes. But I do want to say that the men of Canton have found a newer and better way. It is important to record that Canton, after a hundred years, had an amazing awakening.

Canton this year wanted $15,000 so that everything might be free and good fellowship reign at its centennial. It got it. Canton wanted $5,000 for its Y. W. C. A. and $20,000 for its Y. M. C. A. It got it. Canton decided that it wanted a 108 acre park, an eighteen acre athletic field with football ground, a baseball diamond, a fine swimming pool of concrete, a wading pool, a park house, shrubbery and a place set apart for a gun club. It got them all.

Canton decided that it wanted more paving. So it got, this summer, 33 blocks of concrete at a cost of $250,000.

Col. B. M. Chipfield, who has been active in "selling" the people of Canton on the idea that parks and playgrounds and swimming pools are investments in practical business makes comment:

"We pronounce the name of this city Canton. It isn't Canton—not any more."

"When the work was started," said

C. H. Hippler, "there were some who protested at the cost. Today those same persons take visitors to the park and the playgrounds and the pool and boast about it. 'It's ours,' they say with pride."

Way back in 1842 a New England blacksmith, William Parlin, made his first plow in Canton. It later became the Parlin & Orendorff plow works and today is the P. & O. plow works of the International Harvester Company. Its annual business is around $2,300,000. It covers four square blocks and employs 1,200 men. It makes 150,000 farm implements a year of which 100,000 are plows.

The company has an expansion plan which calls for an expenditure of $400,000 in Canton in three years. Recently it asked the Canton City Board to close three blocks of public street to permit it to go on with its building program. It was done almost instantly. Canton, I was told, co-operates with its business institutions, confident that its industries are as set.

"I believe that the general spirit of good will and cooperation between the people of Canton and its industries, Canton's new activities and energy in public things is very largely due to its Chamber of Commerce," said C. Reed, superintendent of the plow works. "There was a time when things were much more difficult."

In many cities I have found a feeling against what the people call "absentee ownership." Canton seems to think that the International Harvester plant is an integral part of itself even though the ownership lies in Chicago. When Cyrus McCormick, Jr., Vice President in charge of manufacturing, came down a few weeks ago he found himself a citizen.

It may be that the amazing and remarkable change in the public viewpoint of Canton, among many other things, is due somewhat to A. E. Greenwood, Managing Secretary of the above mentioned Chamber of Commerce. He came to the work direct from store management in one of the largest merchandising organizations in the United States.

He has sought, he says, to sell the idea of public cooperation and united organization on the solid basis that it is good, practical, sound business. He hasn't talked sentiment. If the boys are not playing ball in the summertime, he says, it's bad business.

The most pugnacious remark I heard in Canton was from a lawyer who said:

"Until we got busy and built our public playground there wasn't a damned place for the kids to play."

In that remark I felt that I got a broad insight into the Canton that was as compared with the Canton that I had been about Canton, in a car, and had noted that so many of the things that go to put cheer in life and health in the body are new things. It was not pointed out to me, I saw it.

Such things usually develop slowly, over a long time. Here they seemed to have come quick; sudden. That was why I asked questions.

In these twenty-six weeks of investigating towns and cities I have learned some things about why they grow and progress—or why they do not. I have found that, while there are many things to think about, back in the heads of the average would-be locator of an industry are always thoughts like these:

"Is this the sort of city I'd want to live in?"
"Will my employees be happy and contented here?"
"Is this a good place in which to raise a family?"

Happiness of mind and body, I believe are of overpowering importance in city building, wielding even greater influence than freight rates and transportation. That's why I believe the awakening of Canton to united effort and friendly organization can be an inspirational lesson to all of Illinois.

It was Canton's centennial, its hundredth year of existence climaxed by a mighty birthday party that brought 40,000 persons to its new park for a gala three-day celebration, that was the final grand argument for continued cooperation in everything that affects all.

So as its starts Year One of its ceond century Canton has written on the cornerstone of its edifice:

"You can't do it alone."

Canton seems to have a newborn happiness in the knowledge that it is in accord. The new concrete, the newly turned earth, the swimming pool, the woodwork that still smells of the forest—what a story they tell. They've used a lot of paint in this last twelve-month in Canton. I feel better toward people for learning the story of Canton's fresh grip on things. Year One, Second Century—a new beginning.

OBITUARY

MRS. HERMAN FETZER

(Contributed)

Caroline Wilhelmina Fetzer, nee Haefner, was born in Brooklyn Twp., Lee County, December 31, 1875 and passed away at her home, 3 miles east of Van Orin on October 22, 1925. She attained the age of 49 years, 2 months and 21 days. The deceased was the fourth oldest child of John and Elizabeth Haefner. On January 16, 1875 she was brought to the Lord in Holy baptism, and later, after being instructed in the doctrines of the Lutheran faith, she renewed her baptismal vow in the act of confirmation. Her confirmation took place in the Brooklyn Lutheran church, March 30, 1899. On December 19, 1895 she was united in marriage to Herman Fetzer and in the spring of the following year moved onto the farm where she closed the days of her earthly pilgrimage. It is unique in the life of the deceased that she was baptized, confirmed and married in the same church, the same minister officiating. She was a happy wife, a loving and kind mother and enjoyed the company of her christian friends and neighbors as well as they enjoyed her company. The departed was a faithful and consistent member of the Lutheran congregation at Amboy. She will be greatly missed in the church and in the circle of friends and acquaintances. She has lived a life for others rather than for self.

Although the departed had been ailing for about seven years, she was always cheerful and contented, bearing her burdens in silence. In April 1924 she suffered a stroke from which she never fully recovered, although she was again able to be about her duties. On Monday, October 19, she again became seriously ill, and passed to her reward on Thursday evening at 7 o'clock.

She leaves to mourn her sudden and untimely death, her husband and three children. They are, Mrs. Laura White, Alice and Lester. She also leaves to mourn six brothers and six sisters and one half brother; also two grandchildren and many more distant relatives, besides a host of friends and acquaintances who will rise up to call her name blessed. May her memory linger lovingly in the minds of all who knew her. And may she rest in peace to awaken in the eternal light.

Funeral services were held at the home Sunday afternoon, the Rev. Paul Bredow officiating and burial was made in the Van Orin Repose cemetery.

Can a Washer
TALK?

For homes without electricity, the Maytag Gyrafoam is available with Gasoline Multi-Motor attachment.

9 Outstanding
Maytag Features

- 1 Washes faster.
- 2 Washes cleaner.
- 3 Largest hourly capacity in the world.
- 4 Most compact washer made—takes floor space only 25 inches square.
- 5 Cast aluminum tub—can't warp, rot, swell, split or corrode.
- 6 Easily adjusted to your height.
- 7 Clothes can be put in or taken out with the washer running.
- 8 Tub cleans itself.
- 9 All metal wringer. Self adjusting. Instant tension release.

9 Reasons for World Leadership

WHEN the Maytag Gyrafoam was invented, we adopted a new plan for bringing this marvelous washer before the housewives of this country.

First, we made a washer so "far superior," so superlatively good, that it would virtually speak for itself.

Then we asked the housewives to permit us to bring the washer to their homes to do a washing.

By this simple, practical method the Maytag, telling its own story, in less than 600 days became the most "preferred" washer—it leaped into world leadership.

So we ask you to permit us to bring a Maytag to do your washing next washday. Just phone us—you will not be obligated in any way. And if the washer does not SELL ITSELF to you, we will take it away again.
